Information for Libraries

Thanks for reading our newsletter for librarians. Feel free to forward this newsletter to others, and to contact us if you have any questions or suggestions for future content.

Newly classified book

The book Kate & Wills Up The Aisle: A Right Royal Fairy Tale was classified as unrestricted in September. Books classified as unrestricted do not require classification labels. This book was submitted to the Classification Office as a result of a complaint from a member of the public.

LIANZA Conference 2011

Staff from the Classification Office participated in the LIANZA conference again this year. The librarians attending showed a lot of interest in our stand, and we had some great conversations – and lots of interesting questions!

Please let us know if you have any more questions, or if you would like us to send any more resources to your library.

New resource – censorship information in other languages

An overview of the classification system is now available in 20 languages. If you think these resources would be useful for your patrons you can download the PDFs from our website.

Website update – information about books banned in NZ

There was a lot of curiosity at LIANZA about the banned books list we had on display, and so we've added information about banned books in the Libraries section on our website.

New resource – information about restricted labels for your DVD collection

A librarian recently contacted us asking if we could provide a DVD slick resource to go inside the cases of restricted DVDs in their collection. We thought this was a great idea, and so we've sent out PDFs of the new resource with this newsletter. One slick is for DVDs with RP labels (eg RP13 or RP16), and the other is for DVDs with R labels (eg R16 or R18).
